

Get involved

Palestinians have called on people of conscience around the world to support their struggle for justice by campaigning to put an end to corporate and financial complicity in Israel's regime of oppression.

Here's how you can get involved:

- Email Barclays and demand it end all business relationships with arms companies supplying Israel with weapons and technology, which is used in violence against Palestinians.
- If you're a Barclays customer, hand in our template letter to the bank manager – demand Barclays divest from apartheid-licit companies.
- Join a local protest in your area.

Barclays Bank is investing in Israel's violent repression of the Palestinian people

Armed violence is at the heart of Israel's apartheid and occupation regime. Palestinians live under threat of lethal violence from Israeli forces and settlers, arbitrary arrest and detention, home demolitions and forcible transfer, and intrusive surveillance of all areas of their lives.

This militarised repression is made possible by international complicity: countries, like the UK, trade in arms with Israel, whilst corporations, like Barclays Bank, invest in these weapons and other repressive technologies.

Barclays provides billions of pounds worth of investment and loans to arms companies selling weapons and military technology to Israel. Barclays is actively arming and upholding Israeli apartheid.

Barclays must STOP facilitating and profiting from Israel's violence against Palestinians.

Join the campaign and call on Barclays to stop banking on Israeli apartheid!

Barclays' investments in repression

Barclays Bank owns shares worth over £1.3 billion in companies supplying Israel with weapons and military technology used in violence against Palestinians. In addition, Barclays provides these companies with over £4 billion worth of loans and other financial services. The companies include:

- Elbit Systems, Israel's largest private arms company. It supplies 85% of Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (drones) used by the Israeli army. Elbit Systems weaponry has been used extensively in Israel's deadly bombardments of the besieged Gaza Strip. In addition, Elbit Systems has been associated with the production of cluster munitions, banned under international law.
- Raytheon produces bunker buster bombs, used by Israel to target civilian homes in Israel's repeated bombardments of the besieged Gaza Strip.
- Caterpillar supplies the Israeli military with D9 bulldozers, used to demolish Palestinian homes, schools, villages, and civilian infrastructure, including sewage and water pipes. D9 bulldozers are also used in the construction of illegal Israeli settlements on occupied Palestinian land.
